I ntroduction

Sierra Madre, (16½ miles from Los Angeles and 500 miles from San Francisco), is a small place in the large State of California.

The resources of the State are so varied, the soil so prolific, the air so stimulating, the climate so health-giving, that much that is told by writers on California is regarded, by outsiders, as tinged with over-exuberant enthusiasm, or unconscious exaggeration.

Nor can it be denied that many of the so-called "write ups," of different localities in California, are apt to be too high-flown, vague, and diffuse, failing to convey to the distant seeker of information the plain every-day facts and details needed for the guidance of the traveler, or careful prospective home-seekers.

The Dictionary of Sierra Madre is intended to serve a double purpose. Its object is to provide, for those already here, a plain unembellished statement of facts, many of which are important, but not always easy of access, and, at the same time, to afford a vehicle for conveying those facts and details to those at a distance seeking reliable information.

Every care has been taken to insure accuracy, and to avoid exaggeration, and, in a word, only to submit statements which will bear the test of independent verification. Any errors or omissions which may have occurred are unavoidable and will be corrected in future editions.

The Editor is indebted to Mr. Pliny Gregory, formerly of Sierra Madre, for the list of wild-flowers in Sierra Madre and immediate neighborhood; to Professor Gregory, of Yale, for the account of the geology of the place; to Mr. E. W. Camp for legal information; to Captain J. A. Osgood for the map of Sierra Madre; and to Mr. W. H. Pinney for invaluable assistance in hunting up a variety of needful details.

AIR.

The air of Sierra Madre is fresh, pure, and invigorating. It is good to breathe either day or night. The old-fashioned exploded idea of trying to avoid "night air" may well be disregarded. With the windows open, and an abundance of fresh night air, everyone sleeps better, is in better health and consequently in better temper. If you feel cool put on more bed-clothes, but do not close the windows and re-breathe the foul air as it accumulates in the room.

LITTLE SANTA ANITA CANYON.

The lower part of this canyon is owned by the estate of the late N. C. Carter, the upper part by the Sierra Madre Water Co. The canyon is a most picturesque spot, and for years the public have had the privilege of using it for picnics free of charge. Of late owing to persistent damage done to trees and ferns by undesirable visitors, the Carter Estate have instituted a charge of ten cents for admission. On account of frequent damage done to their water pipes, and other objectionable practices, the Sierra Madre Water Co. seriously contemplate closing the upper end of the canyon altogether.

Children rarely die of ileo-colitis or any of the bowel troubles incident to the summer season."

CHURCHES.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
CENTRAL AVENUE

This church was organized March 27th, 1886. The church building was erected, and dedicated to the worship of God Dec. 14th, 1890. The parsonage was built in 1905.

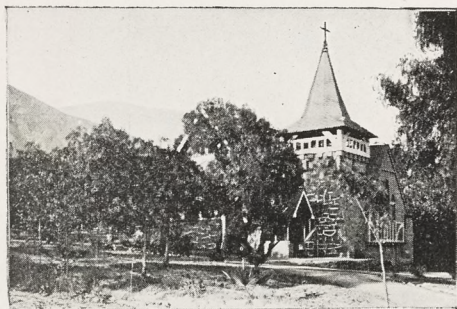

In its Statement of Principles this church declares that while affiliated with the Congregational denomination it is practically a Union church. It is a self-governing body; and can at any time alter its constitution and creed to meet local demands. It takes for its Motto, "One is your Master even Christ, and all ye are brethren."

The present pastor is Rev. James M. Campbell, D. D.

"For modes of faith let graceless bigots fight; He can't be wrong whose life is in the right."

The regular order of service is as follows:

1. Sunday School 10 A. M.
2. Morning Service, 11 A. M.
3. Christian Endeavor 6:45 P. M.
4. Evening Service, 7:30 P. M.
5. Mid-week meeting, Wed. 7:30 P. M.
6. On every alternate Tuesday afternoon the Ladies Aid Society gives an informal Tea in the Church Annex; to which all ladies of the Church and their friends are cordially invited.

CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION (EPISCOPAL)
BALDWIN AVENUE

Erected in 1884 as a Mission Church. The Parish was organized and incorporated by the present rector in 1905.

The Rectory, on Laura Av., east of the Church, was built by the Ladies' Guild in 1904.

Rev. Charles Edw. Bentham, Rector.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

GET BUSY!

This gentleman is a pioneer of civic improvement. Pioneers are mighty useful citizens. Through sheer force of circumstances they have often to adopt crude and makeshift methods. As civilization advances they learn that the day has gone by for makeshift, and that the time has arrived for more permanent and orderly procedure. Fortunately one of the chief characteristics of a pioneer is his adaptability.

When a town arrives at the dignity of an electric car service, the time has arrived for adopting the newer methods if it is to be regarded as a live and progressive place.

When therefore its citizens become inspired with the new spirit of civic pride, and local patriotism, there are several things they will consider it their duty to avoid. They will not dump their old cans into a ditch to be washed down to their neighbor by the first heavy rain. If they have bought a lot cheap, because a water-course runs through it, they will not divert it to their neighbors, because this is contrary to the law. When they have cleaned off the weeds in the road in front of their property, they will not forget to burn them.

If they decide to build a wall, and ditch, in front of their property, they will not, if they are wise, build a dry wall and plaster the joints in front and expect it to stand the rush of storm water in a foothill country.

Nor will they lay a narrow ditch with small rock, instead of laying a wide ditch with good heavy

"There is nothing so meaningless as the kiss one woman bestows upon another—unless it is the expansive smile of a hotel clerk."

stone. When they trim their shade trees they will not leave the cuttings in a heap in the ditch to divert the water and cut out the side of the road.

Besides avoiding all these mistakes, they will not forget to subscribe to the Development Association, which, in its turn, will help them by looking after the frontage of neglected lots, in their neighborhood, owned by absentees.

In all the history of Southern California extending back to the days of the Franciscan Fathers, about a century and a half, there has not been a serious earthquake in this region.

Los Angeles and the country round about, within a radius of one hundred miles, while it has experienced some slight "temblors," has never had, within the knowledge of man, an earthquake shock strong enough to do any damage worth mentioning; hardly enough, in point of fact, "to move a brick" (unless, indeed, the brick were just ready to be toppled over.)—Los Angeles Times, April 24, 1906.

FOGS.

There are occasional fogs in Sierra Madre, as there are at one time or another all over California, and even in the drier atmosphere of Colorado. But the elevation of Sierra Madre is a guarantee that the place is much more free from fogs than places at a lower level. In fact, one of the most beautiful sights at sunrise, in Sierra Madre, is to look down upon the valley below, covered with a sea of fog, save a few of the hill and mountain tops, forming temporary islands in the shimmering sea, which is quickly dispersed by the morning sun.

FOREST RANGER.

George Crow, Lima St.

FROST.

The record of temperature in Tables IV and V, at the end of this booklet, were taken on a mesa north of Grand View Av., at an elevation of about 1200 ft. above sea level.

It will be observed that during the two years, given as an illustration of temperature, there is no record of a minimum temperature below 40 degrees. This does not indicate that there is never any frost in Sierra Madre. A record of 40 degrees on a mesa often means 32 degrees or less at a lower elevation in an arroyo, a few hundred feet away, or in lower lying areas. There is occasionally in Sierra Madre, frost, with thin sheets of ice in drinking troughs, which quickly disappear under the rays of the sun. But even with occasional ice, in low lying land, tomatoes may continue to grow through the winter in the more sheltered spots. As a matter of fact, on the mesa where the records of temperature were taken, Hungarian pepper (paprica) plants have grown and borne fruit, summer and winter, continuously for four successive years.

FREIGHT RATES TO SIERRA MADRE (from Los Angeles.)

By Santa Fe Ry. to Santa Anita Depot, 8c per 100 pounds. By Pacific Electric Ry. to Sierra Madre, 7 to 9 cents per 100 pounds, according to classification and quantity.

FRUIT GROWN IN SIERRA MADRE.

Apples, apricots, blackberries, cumquats, custard apples, figs, grapes, grape fruit, guavas, lemons, limes, loganberries, loquats, nectarines, olives, oranges, peaches, pears, persimmons, plums, prunes, raspberries, strawberries, walnuts.

Apples grow better higher up the mountains, or lower down the valley, where there is more frost. Apricots, peaches, prunes and berries cannot be grown to compete commercially with places more suitably situated.

GEOLOGY.

The minutely carved Sierra Madre range, with its precipitous borders and its wilderness of deeply cut, short, narrow canyons, and the broad San Gabriel Valley, with its sloping plains of alluvial deposits are the topographic controls which determine the scenic features of the village of Sierra Madre.

The mountain mass and the valley owe their existence to movements in the earth's crust along lines of fracture. Such a line of fracture, or fault, irregular and much obscured, extends along the southern face of the Sierra Madre mountains and forms the boundary between the mountains and the San Gabriel Valley. The faulting which produced this marked change in topography, was not a sudden movement, but a long continued process. The San Gabriel basin slowly sank and warped into shape, and the Sierra Madres at the same time gradually attained their height. Furthermore, during all the stages of mountain building, streams were at work cutting down highlands and filling depressions.

The Sierra Madre mountains consist of igneous and metamorphic rock, the Puente hills of folded shales and sandstones, while the valley between is strewn with boulders, gravel and sand, which are fragments of the bed rock from the surrounding highlands. The prevailing rock types used for walls and foundations, or lying in the stream beds of Bailey and Santa Anita canyons, are granodiorites and gneisses, which make up the main mass of the Sierra Madres. The country rocks are cut by numerous dikes, chiefly of aplite and quartz. These dikes are exposed in the canyon walls, and at favorable localities on the Wilson trail are seen to form a network of interlacing veins broken by numerous small faults. Two varieties of alluvial wash, composed of decomposed rock from the mountains, form the sloping fan on which the village of Sierra Madre is built. The older variety seen at Eaton canyon and near the foot of Wilson trail is compact and dull red in color; the later wash is light colored sands and gravels, such as is being deposited by present streams. The material removed from the Sierra Madre mountains and deposited in the valley rests upon rock bottom far below sea level. Near Monrovia the thickness of unconsolidated alluvial wash may reach 4000 feet. If the material deposited in the San Gabriel Valley by the canyon streams could be replaced on the mountains, the valley would appear as a depressed low land, diversified by ridges and by valleys, reaching far below sea level. The Sierra Madre mountains on the other hand, would be much higher than now, the canyons would be filled, and a snow covered mass would stand as a great oblong block towering above the sunken basin to the south.

The Sierra Madre mountains are perhaps the oldest highlands in Southern California, but they are geologically new. During late Tertiary time, the San Gabriel Valley was occupied by the sea, and the mountains, including the slopes near the village, were slowly emerging. The larger features of the geology were determined at that date, but the details of erosion which constitute the chief charm of the local scenery, are the work of the atmosphere, and the streams, which are carving hill and valley into intricate pleasing forms.

INCORPORATION.

Sierra Madre is not incorporated, but the desirability of incorporation has been seriously considered. A committee has been appointed, and action will be taken later in the year.

INFORMATION BUREAUS, (See under Bureaus.)

INSECT PESTS.

Citrus fruit growers have to contend with red and black scale, which they keep in check by fumigating and spraying.

Householders have nothing more to contend with than the common house fly, ants and occasionally a few mosquitoes. The house fly breeds most freely in stables and the best preventative is sprinkling the litter in the stable with kerosene. Mosquitoes only propagate if they are provided with suitable breeding places in stagnant water or cesspools with insufficiently protected ventilators. Get rid of stagnant water or take other proper precautions and the mosquitoes disappear.

IRRIGATION. (Sierra Madre Water Co.)

The irrigating season usually begins in May and continues until the first good rain in the fall. The time allotted each month to stockholders for irrigation is arranged by the superintendent, who advises each stockholder, each month, of the time and date allotted to him. Holders of less than 1½ acres of land are not entitled to an allotment for irrigation, but can attend to the watering of their places during sprinkling time.

Anyone interfering with gates or shut-offs, or using water for sprinkling during irrigating hours, is liable to a fine.

DIRECTORS.

W. S. Andrews, J. G. Blumer, C. E. Cook, J. J. Hart, S. R. Norris, E. H. Vannier, and Miss Lydia Webster.

*"He is rich enough who owes nothing,
The Miser and the pig are of no use 'till dead."*

The Sierra Madre Library Association is incorporated under the Laws of the State of California.

It is under the control of a board of seven Directors who are elected annually by the members of the Association.

Membership in the Association is open to any person, of full age, on paying an annual subscription of two dollars, or a single subscription of twenty-five dollars.

The payment of an annual subscription entitles the subscriber to membership for one year, the payment of twenty-five dollars constitutes a Life Membership.

Every member is qualified for election as Director of the Association; is entitled to vote at all meetings of members, and is entitled to draw books from the Library subject to the rules of the Association.

A monthly subscription of twenty-five cents entitles the subscriber to the use of the Library, but does not qualify such subscriber as a member of the Association.

The Library is open five times each week, viz: On Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 3 till 5, and on Tuesday and Friday Evenings from 7 till 9, except during the months of August and September, when the Library is open on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7 till 9, and on Saturday afternoons from 3 till 5.

The Reading Room, in connection with the Library is open to the public, at the times above stated, free of charge.

There are over 2300 books in the Library, and the Reading Room table is supplied with the leading magazines and periodicals.

The Library contains a variety of standard works together with a selection of the best of the new and popular books as they are published.

Mention should not be omitted of the unique manner in which the serious expense of a permanent Librarian is overcome. The work of keeping open the Library five times a week is undertaken by twelve ladies, each of whom is on duty for one month, and whose sole remuneration is an annual membership worth two dollars. Without the co-operation of these ladies the Library could not be run so successfully.

MEASUREMENTS, WATER. (Sierra Madre Water Co.)

In order to ascertain the proportion of water due to each stockholder, according to the number of shares of stock held by each stockholder, regular and systematic measurements of the water in the Little Santa Anita Canyon are made by the superintendent and duly recorded.

Domestic Water is measured to the consumer, by meter.

Irrigating Water is measured by miner's inches, but any stockholder, on providing necessary and suitable connections and on making application in writing, to the superintendent, can have his irrigating water, also measured by meter.

OLD PEOPLE.

Dr. Norman Bridge, Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Rush Medical College, in a paper on the "Climatic Conditions of the Southwest Corner of the United States," says: As to the influence of this region on people, I should say it is the paradise of the aged and of children. Old people pass and piece out happy lives because of the relief from extreme weather.

ORANGES. The varieties of oranges grown in Sierra Madre are, Washington Navels, Seedlings, Valencias and Oonshius. The quality is excellent. The gold medal for oranges at the Lewis and Clark Exposition in Portland, in 1905, was awarded to Mr. W. S. Andrews, for oranges grown in Sierra Madre.

ORANGES, COST OF.

The cost of growing oranges, per packed box, including 6 per cent. interest on land, valued at $1000 per acre, is variously estimated by large growers at from 87½ cents to $1 per box.

ORANGE STEALING.

The foregoing information as to the cost of growing oranges is given because a great many visitors to the neighborhood of orange and other fruit ranches, and these visitors are by no means all tourists or "tenderfeet," imagine, or act as if they imagined that oranges, like California poppies, spring up and grow without care or cost to the grower, and that anyone, or everyone, has the privilege of stepping into an orchard and helping themselves.

The "lady" who unblushingly fills her network shopping bag with oranges, the "gentleman" who audaciously crowds them into his dress suit case, the family party, with their two horse team, who greedily load up the bottom of their carriage with the yellow fruit, and the more modest and shame-faced peddler, who operates after dark, are hereby informed that taking oranges, lemons, grapes, or any other fruit, without permission, is stealing.

The law calls stealing "Larceny." "Larceny is the felonious stealing, taking, carrying, leading or driving away the personal property of another." Penal

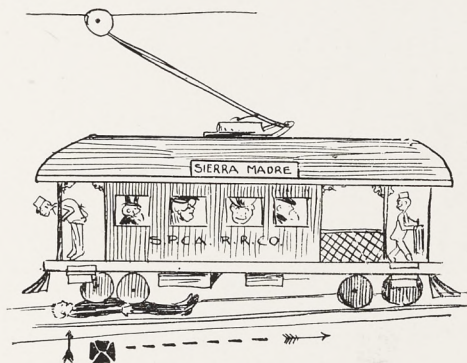

(She) "Will I get a shock if I put my foot on the rail?"
(He) "Not unless you put your other foot on the trolley wire!"

Code, Section 484. "Pulling and taking oranges from trees is also larceny." Penal Code, Section 495.

If the oranges taken are worth less than $50, (fifty dollars,) the stealing is petty larceny, (Penal Code, Sections 487 and 488,) and is punishable by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail, not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment. Penal Code, Section 490.

The Penal Code, Section 604, also declares that every person who maliciously injures or destroys any standing crops, grain, cultivated fruits, or vegetables, the property of another, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

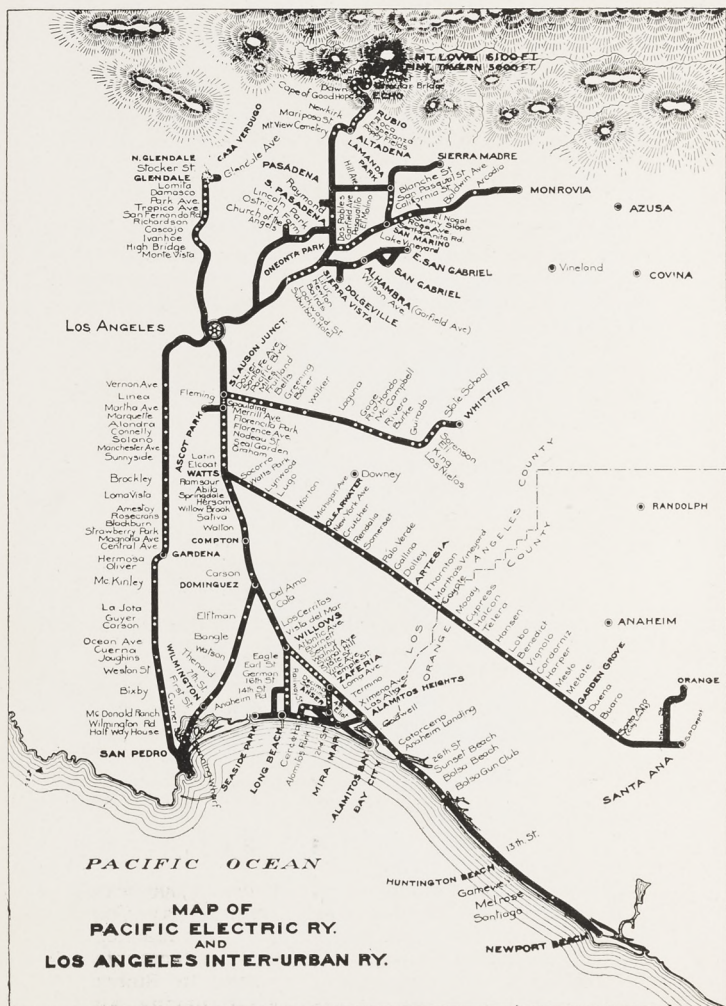

Any one guilty of such misdemeanor is subject to the same punishment to which one subjects himself by committing petty larceny. Penal Code, Section 20.

PACIFIC ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

The Sierra Madre extension of this railway was opened on January 1, 1906.

To secure this extension, a bonus of $20,000 was paid to the Los Angeles Inter-Urban Railway Co., the builders of the road, and $4191.50 was expended in securing rights of way. Toward these amounts the residents and owners of property in Sierra Madre contributed over $23,000. After paying all expenses, a rebate of 17 cents on the dollar was paid to all those who subscribed twice to the bonus and rights of way fund.

PIONEERS.

The late John Richardson and Mrs. Richardson, with their son Levi, and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, were the first comers to Sierra Madre. They took up land near the mouth of the Little Santa Anita Canyon.

The late N. C. Carter purchased part of the Santa Anita Ranch and laid out the Sierra Madre Tract, which was recorded in the Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles County, Book 4, page 502, on Feb. 7, 1882.

Among the earlier settlers, most of whose names are either on the Articles of Incorporation of, or the list of first subscribers to the Sierra Madre Water Company, in October, 1882, were W. S. Andrews, Wm. Burlingame, Chas. W. Clement, C. E. Cook, W. B. Crisp, Geo. B. Davis, A. Gregory, M. J. Gregory, Jas. W. Goodwin, N. A. Hosmer, Fannie H. Hawks, Robert Hilton, Chloe B. Jones, E. B. Jones, E. T. Pierce, Geo. B. Renfro, R. E. Ross, J. E. Sangster, A. D. Trussell, Percy Wilson, I. A. White and Josephine E. White.

E. T. Pierce was the first principal of the Sierra Madre School, then in the Santa Anita School District, and the first Postmaster.

Many of these pioneers have passed over to the majority. Others are living elsewhere. Only six of those above mentioned are left among the present residents in Sierra Madre viz: W. S. Andrews, C. E. Cook, Fannie H. Hawks, N. H. Hosmer, Chloe B. Jones, and E. T. Pierce.

PIPE-LAYING AND CONNECTING.

C. M. Clark & Co., Central Av.

PIPES, WATER. (Sierra Madre Water Co.)

The position of the northernmost pipe line, indicating the northerly limit to which the Water Co., delivers water, is described later. Most of the existing lateral pipe lines have been put down, at their own expense, by parties opening up tracts and subdivisions. Nearly all of these lateral pipe lines have been deeded to the Sierra Madre Water Co. on its assuming the care of and maintenance of such laterals.

"Much that passes for love wouldn't stand the test of curl papers."

The Sierra Madre Water Co. being a co-operative company, and not a company organized for profit, does not undertake to put down pipe lines for persons opening up subdivisions, but such parties, being stockholders, have the right, under Article VI, Sec. 2, of the by-laws, to apply for a connection with the company's mains at any convenient point.

The company does not accept any lateral pipe line connecting with its mains less than 4 inches in diameter, or that is below 16 gauge standard quality of steel. For lots and properties less than 1½ acres, connecting and distributing pipes are not allowed above 3-4 inch. Irrigating pipes do not exceed 4 inches.

PIPE LINES, MAIN. (Sierra Madre Water Co.)

The northernmost 16 inch main pipe line runs from the company's tunnels, in the Little Santa Anita Canyon to a division box, 125 ft. north of the corner of Baldwin and Carter Aves., thence in a southwesterly direction through 8 inch, diminishing to 6 inch pipes to the reservoir, north of Grand View Av.; thence in a similar direction to nearly the west line of the Sierra Madre Tract, when crossing Grand View Av. it runs south to Central Av. The position of this main pipe line at the various points along its course, before it reaches Grand View Av., indicates the northerly limits to which the Sierra Madre Water Co. delivers water.

There are other mains along Grand View, Central and other east and west avenues.

PUMPING PLANTS.

J. C. Pegler, Canyon Av.

Watson Ranch, Live Oak Av.

T. E. Yerxa, Baldwin Av.

Sierra Madre Water Co., Central Av.

The pumping plant of the Sierra Madre Water Co. is situate at the southern extremity of 35 acres of water bearing land lying between Grand View and Central Avs. Up to the present it has only been needful to sink one well on this land. The water from the mountains, before reaching this well, percolates slowly through natural filter beds of sand and gravel. It is pumped from a depth of 156 ft. and forced, by powerful triplex pumps, into a reservoir north of Carter Av., whence it is distributed by gravitation.

RAINFALL.

The records of precipitation for seventeen consecutive seasons, in Sierra Madre, given in Table II, were taken on a mesa north of Grand View Av. at an elevation of about 1200 ft. above sea level. They are not absolutely, but only relatively accurate, for the whole of Sierra Madre. Nearly twenty years' observation shows that along the foothills, where clouds are driven in against the mountains, precipitation sometimes varies considerably within comparatively short distances. The variation is much more constant and the rainfall heavier, on the foothills, as will be seen from Table III, when comparison is made with places at lower elevations.

Yet, with a heavier rainfall, streets and roads at foothill places, owing to rapid drainage and the nature of the soil, are almost entirely free from mud.

Snow, which is usually confined to the mountains, very occasionally gets down as low as the foothills, and even into the valley below, but it does not last, melting almost as quickly as it falls. There are also sometimes local hailstorms, generally lasting only a few minutes and dreaded most for the damage they do to young fruit.

RANGER, FOREST.

George Crow, Lima st. bet Central and Highland Aves.

RATES FOR WATER SERVICE. (Sierra Madre Water Co.)

For domestic water, $1.25 per month.

For irrigating water, 50 cents for each irrigation, both payable monthly, in advance.

Each stockholder is entitled to a share of the gravity water, from tunnels in the Little Santa Anita Canyon in proportion to the number of shares of stock owned by him. The charge of $1.25 per month for domestic water, and 50 cents for each irrigation is for the delivery of such proportionate share of water. The quantity of water available for delivery from the canyon each month naturally varies, according to the time of the year and the previous season's rainfall.

When the flow of water from the Little Santa Anita Canyon diminishes, to such an extent as to require reinforcement, water is pumped from the company's well, and if called for, delivered to stockholders for 10 cents per 1000 gallons, each stockholder being also entitled to a share of the water from the well in proportion to the number of shares of stock in the company held by him. In connection with the reserve water in the well, it may be noted, than in 1905, it was not needful to pump any water before the beginning of September. In seasons, after a light rainfall, it is usually needful to start the pumps earlier,

TEMPERATURE.

The record of temperature for two years, as given in Tables 4 and 5, is fairly indicative of the character of the climate. The absence of severe frost has already been commented on under "Frost." During the period of 18 years covering and including the years 1889 and 1905, the average number of days when the thermometer recorded 90 degrees and above, and 100 degrees and above, was as follows:

Month—	Average number of days when thermometer recorded
	90 deg. and above.	100 deg. and above.
April66	.11
May	1.22	.11
June	3.15	.33
July	8.10	3.88
August ..	9.4	1.22
September	7.11	.77
October	1.55	.11
November27

During the eighteen years of which the foregoing is only an average, the year with the highest number of actual days with a temperature of 90 degrees and above, was 1899, with 54 days. The same year the record shows 21 days 100 degrees and above. The lowest record was in 1893, when there were only 10 days 90 degrees and above, while in 1890, 1892, 1893, 1902, and 1903, there was no record of 100 degrees and above.

Mere records of temperature do not, however, tell the whole story. Dr. Norman Bridge, of Los Angeles, (Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Rush Medical College,) in a paper reprinted from the transactions of the American Climatological Society, comments on this aspect of the question, and says:

"The temperature of Southern California is higher than that of the Mississippi Valley by an average of 5 to 10 degrees in summer, and by 20 to 30 degrees in winter; and yet the relative humidity is so low that the sensible temperature is $7\frac{1}{2}$ degrees less than it is in the Mississippi Valley and east of it. With an actual summer temperature of 5 to 10 degrees higher than in Chicago, the sensible temperature is $7\frac{1}{2}$ degrees lower; that is, the sensibility of the human body to the presence of heat shows it to be less by that measure. In the regions east of the Rocky Mountains the temperature averages in summer 55 to 75 degrees F.; west of and including that mountain range, it is 50 to 65 degrees. These figures are taken from the publications of the Weather Bureau, and represent a method of calculation that has, I learn, been abandoned as being subject to some inaccuracy. But as to the figures here given, I believe they correspond with the experience of people so far as they are able to state their physical experiences in figures."

Anyone who has had the opportunity of comparing their physical experience of a temperature of say, 90 degrees, no further away than Sacramento, with the same temperature in Sierra Madre, will fully realize that while the records of temperature in two different places may correspond, the actual physical experience, as regards comfort and discomfort is by no means the same.

THUNDERSTORMS.

It used to be the unveracious fashion to describe Southern California as free from thunderstorms. They occur now and again, nevertheless, probably more frequently in spring than in summer. Their record of damage in Sierra Madre for over 20 years is nil.

TERMINAL ISLAND. See under Views.

THEATER CAR. Under present schedule, leaves Sierra Madre at 7:05 p.m., and Los Angeles on the return journey at 11:15 p.m. There are cars hourly in the middle of the day, and in the evening, for going to, and returning from matinees.

THERMOMETERS are made of varying grades and qualities. The cheaper thermometers are frequently inaccurate. A correct record of temperature can only be secured by self-registering thermometers.

TICKETS, RAILWAY. Pacific Electric.

See Table I.

TIME TABLES PACIFIC ELECTRIC RY. CO.

The electric cars run daily between Sierra Madre and Los Angeles, connecting at El Camino for Pasadena, about twelve times each way, between 6 a.m. and midnight. As the time table is subject to alteration at any time, without notice, it is not deemed expedient to publish a time table which might be misleading. Pocket time tables can be had at the Sixth street depot, Los Angeles, and at the depot in Sierra Madre, so soon as the intended depot is erected.

*"Tis distance lends enchantment to the view,
And robes the mountain in its azure hue."*

TIME TABLES, SANTA FE RY. The same conditions apply as to changes. Time tables can be had at Santa Anita Station, at the Santa Fe Office on Spring st., Los Angeles, and are also displayed in the Postoffice, Sierra Madre.

TOWN MEETINGS. See under Development Association.

TOWNSHIPS. Sierra Madre is in Township I. N. and Range 11 W. San Bernardino Meridian.

TRAILS. (The distances are from Pacific Electric Terminus.)

Bailey Canyon Trail. A little used trail starting from the northern extremity of Lima st. and leading to the upper part of the canyon.

Sturtevant's Trail, starting from Carter and Mountain Trail avs., and leading to the head of the Big Santa Anita Canyon and Sturtevant's Camp, a distance of 11 miles.

Wilson Trail, starting from Carter and Mountain Trail avs. and leading through the upper part of the Little Santa Anita Canyon to the Quarter-Way House, 2 miles, the Half-Way House, 4 miles, Martin's Camp, 7 miles, Mount Wilson Hotel, 8 miles, the Observatory, 8 miles.

VEGETABLES GROWN IN SIERRA MADRE.

Beans, lettuce, melons, peas, peppers, chili pepper, Hungarian pepper, spinach, squash, potatoes, tomatoes. Melons, potatoes and squash cannot be grown to compete commercially with places more suitably situated.

VIEWS, THE, FROM SIERRA MADRE.

The fine panoramic outlook from Sierra Madre takes a wide and varied range. To the south and east lies the San Gabriel Valley, in which nestle

"O! Christ! it is a goodly sight to see What Heaven hath done for this delicious land."

the towns of Monrovia, Covina and El Monte. Below these towns are the Puente Hills with Mount Te-mescal as a background. To the north and east snow is usually seen on "Old Baldy," (Mount San Antonio,) from November to May. Further east, more than sixty miles away, the San Jacinto range of mountains, stands out prominently. To the west lies Pasadena and the hills which shut out Los Angeles from view. To the southwest the eye strikes the promontory at Point Firmin, Deadman's Island and part of Terminal Island and East San Pedro. Out in the ocean looms up Catalina Island, and on very rare occasions San Clemente Island, lying twenty miles beyond Catalina is visible. This bare description very inadequately conveys the magnificent outlook from Sierra Madre.

VOTING PRECINCT, SIERRA MADRE.

For National, State and County Elections.

VOTERS, REGISTRATION.

Voters can register either at the County Court House, Los Angeles, or at Sierra Madre, through a deputy, appointed by the County Clerk.

WARDENS, STREET.

Raymond D. Andrews, and Ralph Criswell.

These Wardens were nominated by the children of the Public School, and confirmed by the Committee of the Sierra Madre Development Association.

Their duty is to prevent damage to street signs and benches by the younger children, and to see that the small children do not play on the electric car tracks. The Development Association provides each Warden with a "Star."

WATER SUPPLY.

The water in Sierra Madre is pure and refreshing and abundant. The supply comes from tunnels in the Little Santa Anita Canyon, and is delivered to consumers by gravitation. A reserve supply of naturally filtered water is obtained from a well draining 35 acres of water bearing land. From this well water is pumped and delivered in the latter part of the summer if needed.

WIND.

A most important feature in modifying the summer temperature is the daily breeze from the ocean, which, from May to September, comes up with almost unfailling regularity, every morning about 10 o'clock, cooling and tempering the air. This welcome sea breeze lasts until evening and is followed by a light, but pleasant breeze from the mountain. Hot nights are consequently rare and it is unusual when a blanket is not needed on the bed.

"Wealth is not his who makes it, but his who enjoys it."

Late in the fall, most commonly in December, there are occasional "northers," strong dry winds from the north, which last intermittingly from 24 to 48 hours. Places close to gaps in the coast range suffer most from these winds. Sierra Madre being well sheltered, suffers less and often overlooks the dust from a wind storm without experiencing the strong wind.

WINERY.

J. Hart & Son, cor. of Central and Hermosa Avs.

WINES, made in Sierra Madre. (Brand Monte Vina.)
